Introductory Astrological Principles (theory in general)

A horoscope is a snapshot taken on the exact date and time of birth in which all planetary positions are projected on a circle (360°, as a 2-dimensional copy of a sphere). This circle is divided into 12 parts. Each part is called a house. Every house concurs, harmonizes with a certain sign of the zodiac and every sign has a ruler (= the planet which dominates, reigns or rules that sign, the planet that always belongs to this sign). Very generally speaking the significations of the houses, signs and rulers are more or less interchangeable. The following delineations are not limitative.

House I Aries (♈) Ruler I Mars (MA, ♂)	The self-asserting ME , the instinctive character, the deed/action, aggression, the sparkle, the impulse, (asserting) primary needs, the disposition of the body, the personal disposition and abilities.
House II Taurus (♉) Ruler II Venus (VE, ♀)	The concrete (tangible) ME , the own (physical) body, substance, material goods (money, small material objects,...), raw materials, all that is consolidated, all that is tangible, the self-worth.
House III Gemini (♊) Ruler III Mercury (ME, ☿)	The visible ME , rational thinking, mobility, small trips, assimilation of information, communication and documents, the neighbours, brothers and sisters (siblings), the nerves.
House IV Cancer (♋) Ruler IV Moon (MO, ♀)	Emotional impulses , all that can touch, move and affect us, the source, the radix, our origin, the parent of the same sex, the family, the home, immaterial goods, the end of things, the potential of creativity.
House V Leo (♌) Ruler V Sun (SO, ☉)	All fixed emotions , emotions that are consolidated, creativity (hobbies), the willpower, your behaviour, play and sports, pleasure, children, love, the centre, pride, the heart, vitality & energy.
House VI Virgo (♍) Ruler VI Mercury (ME, ☿)	Creative experiences with others , work and colleagues, the working environment and working circumstances, subordinates, servitude, adaptability towards the environment, illness, small (domestic) animals, selection and discrimination, criticism and analysis.
House VII Libra (♎) Ruler VII Venus (VE, ♀)	All that one can encounter and meet , the 'other(s)', meetings, relations, social gatherings and the social life, the partner on him/herself, cooperation, contracts, (open or public) enemies, the mental equilibrium.
House VIII Scorpio (♏) Ruler VIII Pluto (PL, ♇)	All that one has encountered or met in "the past" and that one has consolidated , the marriage, mutations and transformations, death, the other's money or goods, principles and ideology, sex, power and compulsions, destruction.
House IX Sagittarius (♐) Ruler IX Jupiter (JU, ♃)	All that one has consolidated and that gets visible and noticed , publicity, the social environment, beliefs, religion, expansions, all that is (far) away from the own environment/domicile, travel.

House X Capricorn (♄) Ruler X Saturn (SA, ♄)	The norm in society , the border, the limit, boundaries, obstructions, hindrance and delays, plumb, life's purpose, the parent of the opposite gender, forms and all that is formal, respect, honour and esteem.
House XI Aquarius (♈) Ruler XI Uranus (UR, ♅)	All that gets concrete in society , standing out, striking, the opposition, electricity, disruption, the shock, being fickle, non-emotional and humanitarian friendships, future prospects and goals.
House XII Pisces (♛) Ruler XII Neptune (NE, ♆)	All that becomes (in)visible in society , freedom, the immaterial, the not, nothing, the sea, sorrows, tears, isolation, abstinence, places of confinement, most words starting with 'dis-...or de-' (disappearance, discharge,...), secret enemies, dreams.

The notion aspect (or 'aspects') signifies the distance (in degrees) between 2 points or planets in a horoscope. Not all degrees are equally important. The most used aspects are:

0°	♄	conjunction (= union of points/planets)
30°	♁	semisextile
45°	∟	Semisquare
60°	*	Sextile
90°	□	Square
120°	△	Trine
135°	◻	Sesquiquadrate
150°	⋈	Quincunx
180°	♁	Opposition (2 points or planets just opposite one another)

The aspects have not to be exact to the minute. A certain difference or deviation from the exact angle (that we call an orb) is allowed, according to the power of the aspect and the planets involved. We use a maximum orb of 6° for the major aspects.

A midpoint is an imaginary point that stands in the middle of two planets. Whenever this (imaginary) midpoint forms an aspect (see above), we get a planetary combination in which the significance of all involved planets can be mixed together. Different planetary combinations make a planetary picture. If, for instance, we write ME = NE/AS, we read this as follows: Mercury (ME) stands in the middle of Neptune (NE) and the Ascendant (AS); In other words, Mercury forms an aspect (of 45°, 0°,...) on this midpoint. The significance of these planetary combinations or pictures are written down in different books, like Ebertin 's "Combination of Stellar Influences" (in short COSI) and Witte 's "Rules for planetary pictures."

Please mind 🙌: the following Relationship Potential Report is based on the date of birth as printed on the printout of the natal chart and as given by you. Inaccurate or incorrect birth-times can result in errors in the Report. The report can only be correct in so far as the birth-time is correct. Small deviations of the birth-time may result in minor deviations in interpretation or delineation, giving a change of accents in the delineations.

I. In General

In this part I discuss the most striking characteristics in your radix (natal chart) that have the most influence on your relationship(s), as there are the most exact aspects (see above for the meaning of the word 'aspect'), the elements and crosses, planetary configurations etc...

Your horoscope shows a dominant AIR element and a WATER void. Most planets/points are placed in mutable signs. This means that your personality resembles the mutable air sign Gemini. Indeed, even if you are born under the sign of Sagittarius, you are more of a Gemini!

Gemini is one of the most curious, inquisitive and unstable/flexible signs of the zodiac. It's eager to collect all the available wisdom. Gemini is the information gatherer and the messenger and represents the mental realms. Communication and learning situations are important to you (reading, exchanging thoughts, views and opinions). Your partner must be willing to live with that, and with your talking! Gemini needs freedom and wants to move freely.

The water void points to a challenge when it comes to relationships. Water symbolizes empathy, "feeling the atmosphere" and relates to the emotional plane. Water is receptive and right-brained. It may be hard for you to express your feelings in an appropriate way and you always approach life in a distant and mental/analytical way.

This water void and your dominant air element signify a rather "cool" and masculine behaviour. You are living more in the head, on the mental plane, rather than following your deepest feelings. There is a whole lot of exchange mentally, not emotionally. You are operating in a superficial way, rather than feeling deeply. That's why you tend to be at ease in social situations where you meet new people in a superficial way. For a deep and strong emotional bond, this lack of water really can be a challenge, the more so because you are a woman who is in an archetypal way associated with the receptive and introvert water element which you lack. For example: you can "talk" about pain, but you do not "feel" the pain.

The fact that the air element is so prominent in your horoscope signifies that you are more connected with the active (male) left-brain side. Moreover, the Sun in the male sign Sagittarius and Mars in the male sign Aquarius are in a very prominent position in your natal chart: the Sun sets and Mars culminates (is the highest planet in your horoscope)!

In the horoscope of a woman this is very important because it reinforces masculine traits, making you very selfish!

Mars, the self-directing drive, is in Aquarius, the sign of individuality and culminates by conjuncting the MC (Midheaven). A culminating planet in a natal chart always has to do with one's own character. Mars is the self-asserting drive, always doing things alone or in its own way, while Aquarius is the sign of brother- and sisterhood and never willing to pin itself down. In other words: Mars in Aquarius is VERY self-reliant and independent.

Mars in Aquarius is a good position for working in groups, fighting for group ideals and social reform but on an emotional one-on-one level, this position is not suited...

Mars is not at ease here when an emotional bond establishes. Mars will try to break free, bringing periodical outbursts of pent-up energy.

Based on the elemental division you should search for somebody who brings BALANCE in your life and compensates what you lack. This means that your future husband should have a dominant water element and an air void. This way, balance will bring compatibility.

In your natal chart, most planets (8 out of 10) are situated at the western half of the horoscope wheel (houses 4 to 9) or the 2nd and 3rd Quadrant. The western hemisphere is all about “the other(s)” because it surrounds the 7th house. People with most planets placed here are very focused on encounters, meetings, relating with others (even superficially) and often rely (too much) on others.

In your case, all your most personal points and planets (the Moon, the Sun, Mercury and Venus) are posited around the Descendant (7th house cusp) denoting that your opinion is very much depending on the meaning and/or behaviour of other people or your partner. You are only able “to feel yourself” through others, through a partner. The pitfall is that you tend to rely too much on others or your partner.

You absolutely need a partner who has an opinion you can rely on. You need a partner and an audience to communicate with, to exchange opinions. You don't want to think about life events alone and want to hear the opinion of other people. You are very articulate and need to discuss life events with a mate before you can or will make a decision.

The fact that so much planets are posited in the western hemisphere makes you a VERY sociable and well-liked woman! (Confirmed by the MC = JU/NO midpoint) However, you also tend to adapt your behaviour too much to the expectations of other people... You want to be friends with everybody, which is impossible. Often, you feel obliged or are forced to relate or meet others even if you don't want to. You can't say no because the Moon in Capricorn, the social norm and formalities prevent you from living your own self. The outer world, external circumstances and encounters may overwhelm you at times sucking your ego.

Not living your own self (Sun sesquiquadrate Saturn) and not being able to live your creative drives to the fullest can be quite a burden for you in the long run.

Also, Mercury is out-of-bounds in your chart. A planet is out-of-bounds when it falls outside the maximum declination of the ecliptic. What has this to do with your relationship potential? Well, Mercury is ruler of the 1st and 5th house, signifying your own self and your love life. Out-of-bounds Mercury is associated with great curiosity (and nervousity) and a talent for the acquisition of knowledge. As ruler of the 5th house it may indicate eventual problems with children (speech or mental problems), eventually you may work in an environment with such children.

Another remarkable fact is the Sun receiving no major aspects, except of a sesquiquadrate from restricting Saturn. The Sun, symbolizing your behaviour, physical body, creative drives, ego and your (eventual) husband is disconnected from other points and planets. The Sun receives no support from other planets and points. Moreover it “afflicts” your Ascendant because of the opposition aspect. The Sun is conjunct your 7th house, but still in the 6th meaning that the Sun is in a 12th house meaning seen from the 7th house. This is quite a frustrating position for the Sun who is not able to live his creative forces (confirmed by the Sun-Saturn sesquiquadrate)...

The Sun, that's you, will do everything to get well on, to be loved. This compulsive drive is compensated by a dynamic and competitive career drive and a very helping hand (the Sun is still in the 6th house of servitude).

A disconnected or unaspected Sun means that you live alone, have to face life alone and also that your (eventual) husband lives alone! Indeed in a woman's chart the Sun is one of the most important significations of her husband, so what counts for you, counts for him!

To bring balance in your chart, any planet in your husband's natal chart should build an aspect to your unaspected and disconnected Sun. If possible, a trine or a sextile would do well and give a boost to your ego.

Fortunately the Sun is not alone in a sign. Venus is in Sagittarius too so that you are not really alone. Somebody is near you (it may be a child because Venus rules your 5th house or it may be a secret lover).

Mars, the Sun and Venus in the Gauquelin zone denote an adventurous, dynamic and highly passionate nature. Not every man will be able to handle these traits in a woman.

II. In Specific

The Moon is in Capricorn, the sign of its detriment. You worry about your emotional responses to other people. Capricorn too is quite a “cool” sign, reinforcing your “cool and distant” behaviour. Capricorn signifies a border, a barrier and mountain, blocking emotional behaviour (emotions are represented by the Moon). You tend to show no emotions at all because you don’t know how or you don’t know how expressing emotions will affect the behaviour of other people. This is the more so because the Moon is placed in your 7th house, conjunct the 8th house. Inappropriate emotional responses may be the result.

Indeed, due to the position of the Moon in its detriment and conjunct the 8th house (still in a 12th house meaning because it’s still on the cusp of the 8th house and has not entered the 8th house yet) the Moon is in a “frustrated and restrained” position. You want to keep your emotions fully under control. You seem to live some extreme emotional ups and downs internally (confirmed by the Jupiter/Saturn opposition). On the one side you strive for love and a secure life, on the other hand a fixed relationship will not satisfy you... This Moon’s position, however, also denotes one who has gone through a whole lot of emotional problems and is able to learn others how to stand on their own feet.

The Moon is a most important factor in relationships and points to whom you feel secure and comfortable with. The Moon points to your Comfort Zone and when relating, you will feel well with everybody who is represented by the Moon’s position.

The Moon in Capricorn points to people of a certain standing, older people or people with a (huge) age difference. Capricorn is an ambitious sign, slowly but steadily climbing up on the ladder in society. Your husband should have one or more of these characteristics. Your partner should be renowned, significant in a certain way and have a higher position. This is very important. Capricorn is quite strict and formal and so might be your hubby. Don’t expect too much emotional comfort in your relationships, because you are too much attracted to rather distant people. Your husband too, will not easily express his emotions and keep them under control as much as possible.

In your horoscope the Moon is out-of-bounds which means that it falls outside the maximum declination. Out-of-bounds points and planets have a very specific meaning in natal astrology, especially the Moon out-of-bounds. According to statistical research a natal out-of-bounds Moon is associated with some alienation from the mother. Often there was some form of “child abuse” on either a mental, emotional or physical level. There always seem to be deprivation of the mother’s love and care for whatever reason (death, ill health, economic necessity or desertion...). Chances are your parents are separated or divorced (MC at 22° Aquarius), making it necessary for you to live your own life and learn to stand on your own feet...

However, emotional insecurity is almost always compensated by a whole lot of success, recognition and wealth. Indeed, people with the Moon out-of-bounds seem to achieve quite a lot.

Often, in a female chart a Moon out-of-bounds indicates that she will usually have one (unplanned) child.

The Moon builds a (weak) trine to Saturn, its dispositor in the 11th house (conjunct the 12th house). You are very much impressed by your mother and you relate(d) in a very formal (distant) and structured way with her. This behaviour might be the same with your husband: very formal meetings/encounters following a certain structure and pattern – for whatever reason. Also, you may be quite puritanical in your love relationships.

The Moon is conjunct the 8th (fixed) house and Saturn is in the 11th (fixed) house denoting a very stereotypical or clichéd behaviour. Nothing wrong with that, it's just a way of being and relating but do know that this configuration denotes that neither you, nor your mother really feel or felt free. Your hubby too will not really feel free. This Moon-Saturn configuration can be quite frustrating in relating!

You do have very “structured and formal” ideas about love. The social norm disturbs your inner emotions. You feel obliged to follow the conventional norm, even if you don't like it that way. On certain occasions you will break away from this social norm and flip your lid.

Aside from the Moon-Saturn trine, your Moon squares independent Uranus. This aspect between the emotional Moon and mental Uranus reinforces mental, distant and cool behaviour. Relationships tend to have an unconventional (Uranus) touch. It's a way to dismiss the idea of belonging to the family; a way of breaking away from familiar habits and the home. Disruptive Uranus wants to break away from the family.

You are born during a New Moon phase. The Moon is waxing but still in an early phase. This too signifies that feelings still have to grow... The mental level is much more developed and overpowers emotions and feelings.

In Vedic astrology, your Moon is in the Purva Ashada nakshatra, ruled by Venus. This position makes you very popular and denotes wisdom. Yes, you are a very well-educated, smart and keen woman. The shadow side is an egoic nature (which confirms or even reinforces the western delineations).

Venus is posited in the 6th house denoting that you rather like casual clothes. You don't like to dress like a pin-up and don't want to emphasize female physical traits. You will prefer simple and easy-to-wear outfits. Your husband must understand this.

You expect from your partner that he too is interested in existential developments. He should help you building a future. He should be willing to serve you!

You too have a very serving and helping attitude. You will do anything to make sure your partner gets to the top!

The ruler of your Ascendant (mercury) is in the 7th house of relationships and the ruler of the 7th is (intercepted) in your 5th house of love. Intercepted signs point to secret affairs and the intercepted ruler of the 7th does point to secret love. Also, intercepted planets (the ruler of the 7th) often denote someone who is shy, does not like the limelight and, most of all, who is ill or has a weak health. Chances are your partner has a (very) weak health.

Actually, you want to love to the fullest and want to have fun, but due to the interception of the ruler of the 7th house in the 5th house, your life seems not to go that way...

You do expect that your partner, other people or external circumstances bring you the fun and distraction you need. They should keep you going and inspire you over and over. However, due to the interception of the ruler of the 7th house and the Moon-Saturn trine, it's very unlikely this will always be the case!

You want to do everything together with your partner: travel together, study together, walk together... Problem is that you tend to fall in love with partners who not always are able to fulfil this need. You put your partner in the limelight, even if he does not want it that way.

You very much long for someone who takes you away in your dreams: the real charming prince on his white horse, the Casanova who takes you with him, your playful GURU! In that way, you are highly romantic.

It's not about physical pleasure, but rather erotic pleasure, flirting and playful and light mental stimuli.

What's even more, the ruler of your 5th house is in the 7th house. Your love (5th house) goes toward your partner (7th house), bringing the potential of a REAL love marriage (it's a double whammy: your 7th house ruler is in your 5th house and your 5th house ruler is in your 7th house)! You want (and are able) to love your partner to the fullest while your partner is not always able to express his love the way you want (his 7th house ruler is intercepted), possibly due to (some) illness. Nevertheless, there is reciprocal love, even if it's not always that visible or outspoken.

You should take care that your (future) husband has not a Moon-Mars configuration because this configuration sucks your energy and may be difficult to live with.

Who is your eventual husband?

In astrology, your partner is symbolized by the 7th house, the ruler of the 7th house and the Sun. Besides this, Venus, planet of love and relationships too has a meaning.

So, let's start delineating your 7th house and its ruler now.

The Descendant at 21° Sagittarius denotes a relationship full of "dangers." You tend to search for unconventional partners and need a lot of physical workout to bring your life in balance. There may be some self-sufficiency in your relationship (the Descendant is in a solar dwad).

The Descendant in a fire sign implies a pull towards fiery, spontaneous unions without looking before leaping. You are capable of promoting warmth and spontaneity. Sagittarius shows what you look for in a marriage partner: he should complete your identity, be open-minded, love travel and exploration, and be idealistic and understanding. He may lack some tact, should even be blunt and may overlook the details.

The Sun is conjunct the 7th house cusp and Mercury is in the 7th house in Capricorn.

The Sun's position always shows where one "shines". In the 7th house the Sun (you and your appearance) shines in public, when encountering people (in a very general way) or by performing (for a class, an audience...). The Sun here tells us something about the physique of your future husband because it is placed conjunct his 1st house (your 7th house, house of the partner, is his 1st house).

The Sun gives a robust and self-conscious appearance. He has some or even is an authority one way or the other. His body perhaps misses some flexibility and he may give a rather stiff impression. In the sign Sagittarius he may be living abroad (in a place that is farther than your near surroundings) and live in totally different circumstances. He may be of another social class too.

The Sun conjunct the Descendant in mutable Sagittarius shows that maintaining a long-term partnership is not easy. You constantly evolve, grow and develop yourself and will always outgrow relationships and move on to greater challenges. This solar position may indicate an open partnership or marriage, kind of a free love or a distant love ("living apart together"). The Sun is too individualistic and not ideal a planet to have in the 7th house of partnerships that needs some give and take from both sides. However, the Sun indicates a partner that can impress other people.

The ruler of the 7th house (Jupiter) is intercepted in Scorpio and opposite Saturn and exactly semisextile Neptune. The opposition aspect always points to what is out of reach, what is outside yourself and distant. Saturn too is a distant planet making this Jupiter-Saturn opposition a challenge. Moreover Saturn is retrograde in the 11th house of friends denoting that friends are few and/or far. Relationships with others are developed properly because, too often, you did not meet the right people. Also, finding individual fulfilment may be difficult because your individuality surrenders to the needs of the collective. There is much more concern with your self advancement, to the expense of others. You would do well working for community organizations.

Due to the Jupiter/Saturn opposition you are in a constant state of stress in your work which may involve either risk, danger and action or social reforms. You are very visible in your work. Fortunately, this opposition is released by Mercury, ruler of your first house so; there is an outlet to the tension.

The exact Jupiter-Neptune semisextile indicates a marriage partner who may be financially rather careless. The principle of Neptune is dissolving, and exact aspects with Neptune point to what is or will be dissolved. This way it's not a good sign to have the ruler of the 7th house aspecting Neptune, because Neptune will dissolve any relationship... In a more positive way the aspect between Jupiter and Neptune is highly visionary, religious/spiritual and platonic. This means that love relationships tend to be very platonic indeed! There really is VERY much admiration. This exact aspect also denotes a difficulty to set limits. Your marriage partner is not always able to say no. He's very sensitive, spiritual and silent (Neptune is the most silent planet of all, Neptune is mute).

Neptune is ruler of the 11th house of sudden and unexpected ("unpredictable") events. The exact aspect with Jupiter, ruler of the house of encounters, denotes a most unexpected love encounter (eventually love at first sight too).

There is another important configuration in your chart that should be mentioned as well; Venus and Jupiter are in mutual reception. Two planets are in mutual reception when they both are in each other's sign. In your chart, Venus is in Sagittarius, the sign of Jupiter and Jupiter is in Libra, the sign of Venus. This is a highly fortunate and successful combination, showing that you will have a successful relationship.

I already told you that Mercury, ruler of your 1st house is out-of-bounds. In the 7th house of the partner, Mercury shows a very great interest in people in general. Mercury is in a good position here and throws harmonious aspects to Jupiter and Saturn, making you a very sociable and highly enjoyable person. Mercury is on Pluto's solstice point giving you some additional plutonian (compulsive) traits. You are concerned, even obsessed, by marriage and formal partnerships (Mercury is in formal and administrative Capricorn who likes ceremonies).

Usually, lovers may be younger because Mercury in the 7th house symbolizes younger people. However, Mercury trines Saturn – its dispositor, which not only denotes that you are well-educated, but also that your marriage partner will likely be older. Mercury in the 7th house denotes an opportunistic way of relating, keeping an eye on the own benefits. Yes, Mercury in Capricorn in the 7th house is very business-minded – even in love relationships! Anyway, suffice to say that love relationships are closer to profound brother-sister friendships than to sexual relationships.

Venus, planet of love is in your 6th house of your working environment. Often, this position indicates that your lover can be found in your working environment. However, this position of Venus is difficult in romantic affairs... Even if you may be very attractive, your workaholic tendencies and attitude may prevent you from relating. This position almost always delays marriage.

According to Ptolemy, in a woman's chart the husband is indicated by the planet with which the Sun is in aspect, provided it is situated behind the Sun and is not more than 180° distant. Following this rule, your Sun does not aspect any planet which may indicate that there will be no marriage. Don't panic, even if Ptolemy's right most of the time, his theories were expanded overtime because his rules must not only be followed literally but intelligently as well. Moreover, Ptolemy's rules have been mutilated and misinterpreted or wrongly translated!

There are three planets oriental of the Sun, the Moon, Mercury and Jupiter, only one of them (Jupiter) the Sun will aspect before it leaves its own sign Sagittarius. This means that you will have about three important relationships, but only one marriage, with somebody represented by Jupiter or with Jupiterian characteristics. Jupiter may denote somebody having another social background; he may be a teacher, lawyer, a philosopher, a stranger or a foreigner. He will be generous, honourable and kind.

Your love potential

Your 5th house tells us more about your love life. There are three planets in your 5th house of love, Pluto is on the cusp of the 5th house, Uranus and Jupiter are intercepted whereas Jupiter also is in the late degrees of Libra, sign of relationships.

In a woman's chart the possibility of a marriage is indicated by the position of the Sun and Mars, representing masculine forces. But let's start delineating your 5th house first.

Pluto in the 5th house conjunct the cusp is in a very strong and powerful position. This is fairly a good place for Pluto making you very creative and very good for writing. You will undergo all changes and struggles to maintain your individuality. The downside is that you have it difficult to accept anything the way it is. You have the compulsive need to make changes the way you want, change the environment to your hand and even try to change your lover (confirmed by the position of Jupiter on the Pluto/Moon/Venus dwad). DON'T try to change the other – only change yourself for the better!

Pluto in the 5th house is an intense position denoting passionate and sensual desires. Chances are you will have at least one very traumatic romantic or sexual episode that made you extremely cautious from then on (confirmed by the Moon in cautious Capricorn in the 7th house conjunct the 8th house; Venus between Neptune and the Sun). You are able and capable of showing burning with desire for someone without showing any sign of passion or desire. This way, marriage is always the culmination of a passionate soap opera romance. Sexual attractions, however, can become obsessive and you must learn to steer clear of hopeless involvements.

Pluto in the 5th house is quite demanding and domineering on your lover(s) as well as on children. You strive for (extreme) perfection, too much so! Know that you will never reach your romantic ideals and goals the way you wish; your lover will never be a reflection of the image you have. Try to be realistic here.

With Pluto in the 5th house, sexuality or love relationships may become a compulsive urge with feelings of guilt.

Intercepted Uranus adds charisma to your nature, even if you are cool or possibly even somewhat rude. Love-affairs may irresistibly overwhelm you, overturning your life, especially secret affairs. This position should be taken care of as it often is a sign of people (men) who will try to exploit you or cannot commit to you or change their life suddenly. Chances are this configuration shows a hopeless affair. Possibly you crave children and can't or will not have them! Anyway, children or children's issues will be a real problem!

Uranus shows where you will break free and what you will break up to feel free. In the 5th house, it's about breaking free from children, love, sex and play.

Also, your sexual life is a little problematic. Your sexual life or longings may be extremely intense, but are repressed for whatever reason or factors (you can't see your beloved one, there is unrequited love, he's too old or young, too married or whatever...). Uranus here points to repressed or hidden desires, leading to illness in the long run! It seems your physical energies and passions are always cooled off by the intervention of reason (confirmed by Mars in airy Aquarius in the restricting 10th house; dominant air element).

Intercepted Jupiter shows that you serve as the "power behind the throne." You want to be the "king-maker" rather than the King (your husband should be the King). Because of the interception, Jupiter cannot unfold its traits of grandeur to the full. Jupiter may you feel lonely here, the more so because it's posited at 29°, a degree of fear to be pinned down, the fear to legalize something and stick to only one person because you fear the consequences! The 29° in a sign always point to endings in some way (and a longing that is not easy to fulfil).

You would be a very good teacher (5th house cusp at 23° Virgo, Jupiter in the 5th, Sagittarius on the Descendant, Ascendant Gemini and its ruler in the 7th house).

The Sun and Mars are in very individualistic signs, hindering or delaying a marriage. Moreover, planets in the western hemisphere delay a marriage in a woman's chart so that an eventual marriage may come late(r) in life.

If we consider that Mars culminates, the Sun sets and Pluto is the lowest planet in your chart, then we must admit that you are a successful (!) and highly career-driven woman with workaholic tendencies so that relating on an emotional level with a partner is not easy at all (confirmed by your Chinese astrology chart: you're a rooster with a Monkey Ascendant). Your marriage partner too seems to be very individualistic.

When looking at some specific midpoints in your horoscope, we observe that SA = VE/PL (with an orb of 0°!) which means that you may have quite a "tragic love life." This exact midpoint really is very important because exact midpoints do manifest during one's whole life. Not all your wishes may become true. However, there also is the following planetary picture: CU = SU/MA = VE = KR = AS/MC which indicates an official marriage.

Within some months your Progressed Sun will conjunct your progressed Descendant, marking the beginning of a period in which your love life will start to blossom (especially remarkable in 2007). This conjunction will last for about two years till (around November/December 2008) the progressed Venus/Sun combo and progressed Uranus will be in paran bringing about another milestone in your love life. Progressed Venus will trine progressed Pluto, indicating a major breakthrough and radical change in your love life. Moreover, your converse progressions show that progressed Mercury (ruler of your 1st house) conjuncts natal Jupiter (ruler of your 7th house of the partner).

2007 and 2008 should be prosperous years for your love life (resulting in a marriage), the more so because transiting Pluto sextiles your natal Jupiter (ruler of the 7th house) then, transiting Jupiter conjuncts natal Mercury (ruler of the 1st house) and the transiting North Node will trine your natal Jupiter.

Where to find love?

According to your love lines, your relationship potential is highest in the following cities or areas:

the wide area around Detroit, MI	Champaign, IL	the wide area around and above Bewdley and Belleville, Ontario, Canada

This also means that irrespective of relocating to these places, your relationship potential with people residing or born in these cities or places is highest. So, it's not necessary to relocate to these places, it suffices when you date someone who is born or resides there.
